CITY OF DUBLIN

A small capital with a huge reputation, Dublin's mix of heritage and hedonism will not disappoint. All you have to do is show up. To experience Dubliners at their most comfortable and convivial, you'll have to spend some time in a pub. A night out in the pub remains the city's favourite social lubricant and one of the most memorable experiences of a visit to Ireland. Dublin has been in the news since the 9th century, and while traces of its Viking past have been largely washed away, the city is a living museum of its history since then, with medieval castles and cathedrals on display alongside the architectural splendours of its 18th-century heyday, when Dublin was the most handsome Georgian city of the British Empire and a fine reflection of the aspirations of its most privileged burghers. Beyond its impressive collection of museums and galleries, and its choice of food from all four corners of the globe – in both restaurant and market form – this is a city that conspicuously embraces diversity and has been transformed by two decades of multiculturalism. It's really just a big capital village, where going for a walk is as much an opportunity for socialising as actually making an arrangement to meet someone.

ACCOMMODATION

Accommodation costs are not included in the conference fee and should be paid directly to the hotel. More information of the accommodation can be found on our website.
